Return to work after walk-out

A.E.I.'s works on Attercliffe Common, Sheffield, were without three quarters of their female workers yesterday morning, when 80 women failed to attend work after a supervision dispute.

But after a lunchtime meeting, 30 returned to work and the other 50 decided after a meeting between shop stewards and management, to return on Monday.

The women said they had come out in sympathy with armature coil workers, but agreed to return to work when details of the dispute were explained to them.

Mr. E. A. K Shail, assistant works manager said that the women complained about the attitude in which supervision was carried out.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN CANAL HAD DRUNK NINE PINTS

An open verdict was recorded by the Sheffield coroner, Dr. Herbert Pilling, at the inquest, yesterday, on Clifford Grayson, aged 57, tool worker, late of Turin Street, Sheffield, who was found drowned in the Sheffield and South Yorkshire Navigation Canal on February 2.

Dr. Alan Usher, pathologist, said tests showed Mr. Grayson had consumed alcohol equivalent to nine pints of beer, and he would be considerably intoxicated.

The coroner said there was no evidence to show the circumstances in which Mr. Grayson came to be in the canal.

He left no evidence that he had done it deliberately, and in a state of intoxication it would not be fair to make any deduction as to his state of mind.

"Mrs. Wheeler's allegations seem contrary to what I know are the objects and ends to which people are working at the school," he said.

3 win legal battle to save mosque

By a staff reporter

THREE Pakistanis won their legal battle to prevent the sale of a mosque at Industry Road, Darnall, yesterday.

The three men, Mohammed Nur, Mohammed Sadiq Malik and Mohammed Aslam, representing other members of the Pakistani community, had objected to the sale of the mosque.

They claimed that the four trustees had not followed the necessary procedure for sale, that it was inadequately advertised and that the purchase price was too low.

Defendants in the case were the four trustees — Choudry Karam Dad, Ali Hedar, Waris Ali, and Munshi Khan, and the two people who had agreed to purchase the mosque, Walis Mohammed and Hamida Deen.

Giving judgement, Deputy Judge Arnold described it "as a long drawn out and very keenly fought battle."

He ruled that the sale must be set aside and that the building must be reopened as a mosque, however few wished to attend.

The claim for damages by the plaintiffs was dismissed and each side was ordered to pay its own costs.

Judge Arnold ruled that the price of sale was too low at £1,200.

At the close of his summing up Judge Arnold said: "If the trustees wish to sell the property they are still entitled to do so but it must be in the conditions of the trust."

COURSE TO BE EXTENDED

By a staff reporter

THE nine-hole golf course at Concord Park, Sheffield, is to be extended—to avoid "congestion."

Mr. F. W. Hawtree, a golf architect, is to be called in to re-design the course.

Sheffield Recreation Committee decided on this plan at their meeting last night.

The chairman, Ald. Kenneth Arnold, said: "The course is about 2,000 yards. It is very popular but it has a congested layout."

He added that the holes would be lengthened, using an extra area of land obtained from the Property Committee, and the work would be carried out next winter.
